New investment of Space Hellas in the IoT field

Space Hellas announces the completion of the 100% acquisition of SenseOne Technologies SA, a leading company in the provision of integrated Internet of Things (IoT) solutions in Greece and abroad.

The investment in SenseOne amounting to a total of EUR 954,000 was completed in two phases, the first with the acquisition of 49% held by Mr. G. Theodoropoulos and Mr. P. Tzortzakis and the second with the acquisition of 51% from SingularLogic and aims to strengthen the product range of Space Hellas, as well as to place it on the market with its own IoT platform.

SenseOne has been active since 2013 with an international presence. The technological solutions offered in the field of the Internet of Things and SenseOne IoT Platform, which it has developed, have been recognized and awarded both within and outside Greece with many innovation awards in the IT sector. SenseOne's solutions focus on the "Intelligent, Sustainable and Resilient Cities, Industries, Buildings" sectors.

The company designs and implements Internet of Things projects of various levels, covering the huge market need for a holistic image through the interoperability of devices, sensors and methods, an image provided by its pioneering platform. "SenseOne IoT Platform" collects data from systems of different technologies, consolidates them and presents them with a single and clear model, providing valuable and timely information for targeted decisions, thus contributing to optimising resource consumption, reducing costs, increasing productivity and improving efficiency in a sustainable way.

SenseOne's existing customer base includes Banks, large Corporations, Industrial Units, Hospitals, Schools and Universities, as well as Municipalities.

Through SenseOne, Space Hellas will build on the dynamics of the platform but also the accumulated know-how of its subsidiary for the implementation of Intelligent Transport projects (Intelligent IoT projects), with a view to providing unparalleled advantages and integrated solutions to the Greek and international markets.
