7th Honorary Scholarship "Dimitris Manolopoulos"

Space Hellas is very happy to announce the scholarship recipients, based on the proclaimed "Dimitris Manolopoulos" honorary scholarship for the academic year 2025–2026.

The three excellent students selected for the seventh award of the scholarship, which has been established in honour of the dear departed founder of the company Dimitris Manolopoulos, are Marianna Karamitrou, a postgraduate student at G.S.P. (Graduate Student Program) "Bioinformatics-Computational Biology" of the National and Kapodistrian University of Athens, Phoebus Timotheus Proestakis, postgraduate student at G.S.P "Data Science and Machine Learning" of the National Technical University of Athens and Maria Schinaki, a postgraduate student at G.S.P. "Computer Science" of the Athens University of Economics and Business.

The company warmly congratulates its fellows, as well as all the other outstanding candidates for their effort and wishes them all the best of luck and success in their academic and professional career.

Dimitris Manolopoulos Scholarships are part of the Space Hellas corporate responsibility program with the aim of giving young scientists the opportunity to realize their ambitions in the field of technology, continuing their studies at postgraduate or doctorate level. The program focuses on cutting-edge technology areas such as communications networks, cyber security and artificial intelligence (AI), contributing to the development of the new generation of skilled professionals.

The awarding of the scholarships was held on Friday March 6, 2026, by the company's Board of Directors and the Candidate Evaluation Committee.
